

Shrewsbury Street Event - Scoring

Debbie and I originally planned 40 controls, scoring 5 points each, to bring the possible total to 200, in line with all the other events this summer. However, Andrew then went out and checked them all, and was out a very long time! So we removed the 3 dubious ones, and stuck with the scoring system and the penalty system which matched, ie. 5 points deducted for every 15 seconds (or part thereof) over the 45 minutes.

Commiserations to Adrian who injured himself and so amassed massive penalty points in walking back, otherwise I think he would have been a clear winner.

Also to Beryl who hasn't been to enough evening events to appreciate it was 45 minutes, not an hour.

No sympathy for Clive – perhaps he needs to learn how to work his new Garmin gadget before he uses it?!

Thank you all for coming, and for the appreciative comments. Most of you seemed to enjoy the final event in the summer series. Look out for the winter series, coming soon.

(Clive apparently forgot that his Garmin was set to stop every time he stopped moving, the moral is either "keep a moving Dan" or chuck it in the bin. Just as well my pacemaker does not operate to the same set of rules, and as I could only see 7 striped posts on the bandstand maybe a new pair of glasses is called for as well.) bm
